

spectrum in the presence of greater demand than supply, so the mere fact that there are not enough channels to satisfy the demands of each full and low power station does not justify extinguishing 1,650 LPTV stations. Consider an area with twelve useable channels, eight full power stations and six low power stations. After awarding each full power station an ATV channel, the Commission could hold a lottery among the six LPTV licensee to see which four get ATV channels. Since the reason minority representation in the ownership of LPTV station is so high is, in part, because LPTV lotteries include a significant diversification and minority preference, presumably the ATV lottery would also have a significant diversification and minority preference as well.

V. Lastly, the fact that there are over 6,000 TV translators should not be viewed as a significant additional obstacle that frustrate any Commission effort to accommodate all existing broadcasters. In the first place, the National Translator Association has consistently stated on behalf of the translator licensees it represents that the translator industry has no interest in ATV conversion rights or allotments. Even if this head-in-the sand outlook were to now suddenly change, the vast majority of the 6,000 licensed translators are located in very rural areas, more than 75 miles from the largest urban areas. Accommodating TV translator in the ATV conversion process will have negligible effect on the demand for channels in spectrally crowded areas, because of this geographic isolation and dispersion of the

TV translator licensees.³⁴

In summary, the practicality of the Commission to include the LPTV service in the ATV conversion process, including awarding LPTV authorization holder ATV simulcast channels before those channels are made available to new comer, need not be evaluated on the basis of phoney all-or-nothing limitations or barriers. The Commission could proceed with the full power allotment, and follow with LPTV allotments in the next six months. Smaller service areas or narrower channels could be used to distribute this spectrum more equitably and efficiently. Lotteries with a minority preference could be used to pick who gets channels in area where the are not enough to go around. And the Commission can let the channel surplus that characterizes the vast majority of cities drive its policy decisions, rather than make policy base on the limited number of over-crowded locations.

IIX. POTENTIAL IMPACT OF SPECTRUM RECOVERY AND CREATION OF CONTIGUOUS BLOCKS OF SPECTRUM ON LOW POWER TELEVISION BROADCASTERS.

With respect to the recovery of spectrum, in the Second Report/Further Notice, the Commission put broadcasters on notice that when ATV becomes the prevalent medium, broadcasters would be required to surrender a 6 MHz channel and cease broadcasting in NTSC.³⁵ Later, in the Third Report/Further Notice, the Commission stated its plan to award certain broadcasters interim use of an additional 6 MHz channel to permit a smooth, efficient transition to an improved technology with as much certainty and as little inconvenience to the public and the industry as possible.

³⁴ And, because, translator are located in mostly low spectrum demand areas, the loss of auction proceeds that would result from accommodating translators will also, likely be de minimis.

It is evident that the Commission remains committed to the recovery of spectrum from full power broadcasters, yet it not evident that the Commission remains committed to spectrum use rights of LPTV broadcasters with the advent of digital technology, with the reluctant possibility of eliminating a vast number of existing minority LPTV licensees. The Communications Act of 1934 mandates that the Commission allocates spectrum in a manner which is, among other things, efficient.³⁶

The 4th FNPRM uses the term "broadcasters" to mean full power broadcasters only and proposes future spectrum repacking and the opening of filing windows for new UHF services without accounting for the use of this spectrum by over 1,600 LPTV broadcasters. If this public interest blind policy making is not rectified, the channels occupied by the LPTV licenses will be filed for by new primary license applicants when these proposed windows are opened by the Commission. Thus, the unstated but unavoidable result of the Commission's spectrum repacking proposal is the destruction of the LPTV service in the near future.

IX. HOW THE COMMISSION CAN ACCOMMODATE LPTV BROADCASTERS IN THE TRANSITION TO ATV

LPTV stations should be displaced only when an alternative is not available. Adequate notice of any proposed allotment table should be given, along with disclosure of all technical standards to all LPTV broadcasters. The Commission should recommend changes in individual allotments so that its Table of ATV Allotments will minimize any adverse impact upon LPTV broadcasters.

LPTV stations should be given an opportunity to apply for remaining ATV spectrum after full power stations have applied for ATV spectrum, but before the general public or non-broadcasters are given an opportunity to apply. Furthermore, any spectrum repackaging or recapture should consider establishing a guard band between full power TV and non-broadcast services that takes LPTV broadcasters into account.

Conclusion

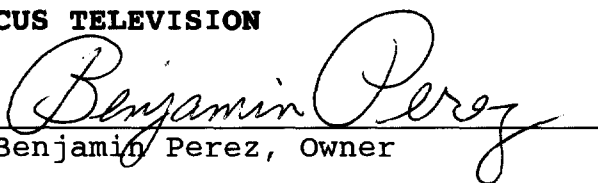

Abacus Television firmly opposes the Commission's policy of exclusion of LPTV as primary licensees in the new ATV service. Abacus Television firmly believes that actions proposed in this Fourth Notice by the Commission is goes against its role as "fiduciaries for the public" and its mission of safeguarding the public's right to receive a diversity of views and information over the airwaves.

Wherefore, for the foregoing reasons, Abacus Television respectfully submits that the Commission should revise its proposals in its Fourth Further Notice of Proposed Rulemaking and Third Notice of Inquiry to insure a more spectrally efficient ATV allotment table and to accommodate low power television broadcasters, particularly the over 128 minority owned LPTV authorization holders, with an ATV simulcast channel.

Respectfully submitted,

ABACUS TELEVISION
